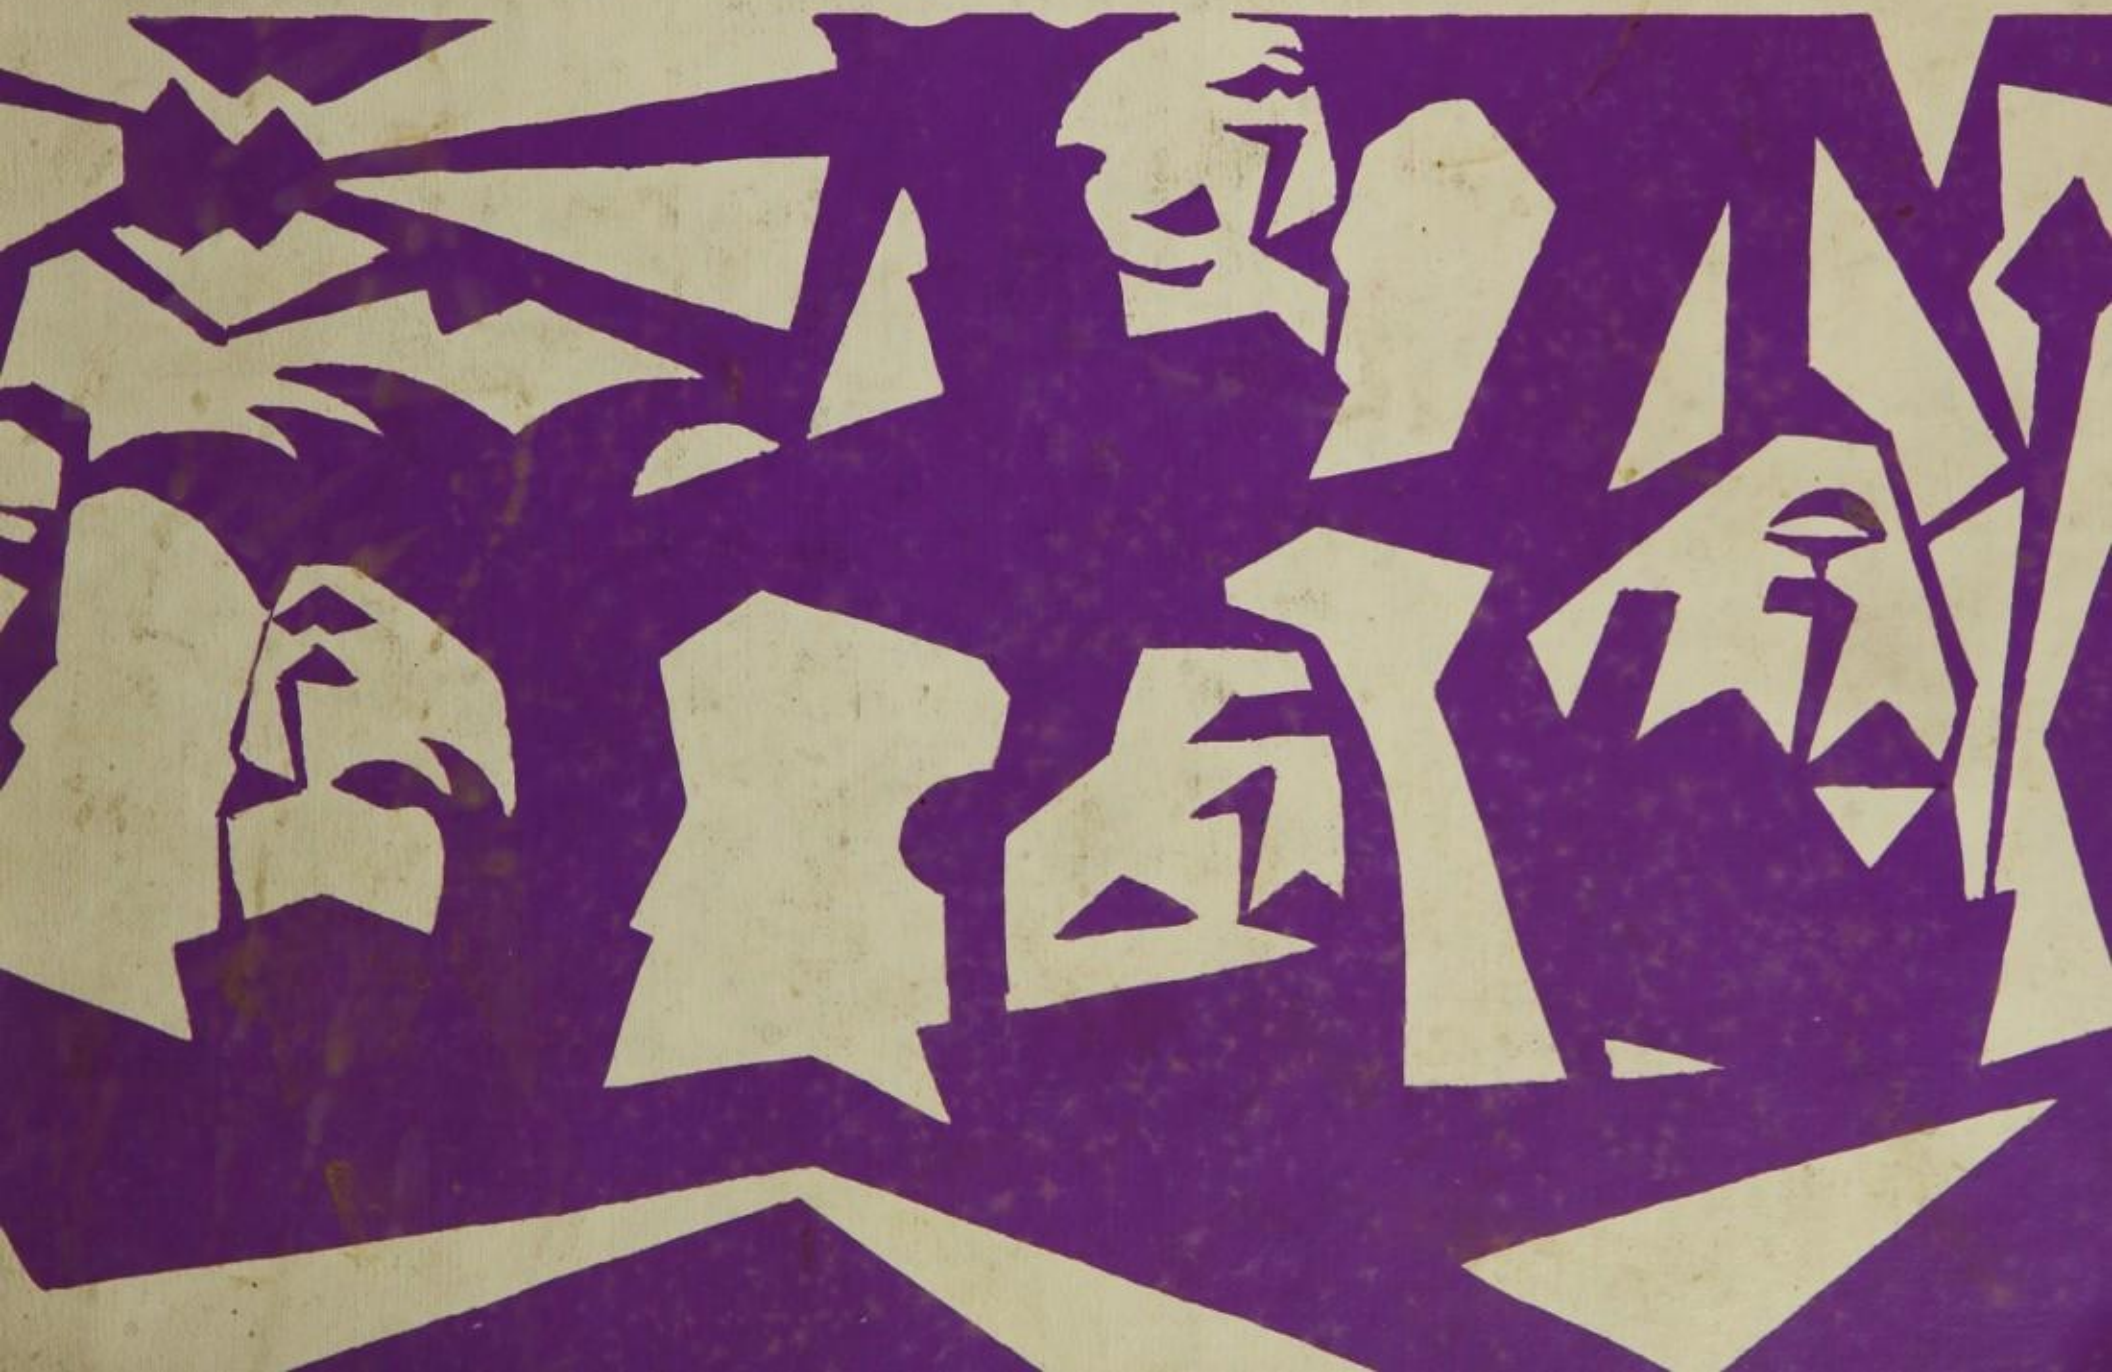
REFLECTIONS 1973



DEDICATION

We the first graduating senior class of Adlai E. Stevenson High School, have reached a goal. Here we are, after four years of study, ready to advance to greater things.

This yearbook is dedicated to all the graduates, for we are the leaders of tomorrow. We hold very high ideals important to the welfare of the world, and to the welfare of all humanity.

Every day brings new challenges. As individuals we must recognize them, analyze different ways of tackling them, and choose from innumerable paths, for they lead to different destinations. Each of us is an individual, each with something to contribute to the world. We have grown to occupy our own place in life. Whereas before we were a group, today we are each self determined individuals.

Yet each of us is not so independent and separate from one another. Unity and cooperation are strong bonds which tie us together. Respect and common striving for a better world in which to live inspire us to do our best in life.

This yearbook will attest to our efforts, and will encourage us to do more.

June 1973

Ladies and Gentlemen Of The Senior Class:

As the first graduating class of our school, you are leaving us all with unforgettable memories and real sadness as you go on to college and the world of work.

We will always remember the first time you met in the still incompleted auditorium and were greeted as members of the Class of 1973, a date which seemingly would never arrive. We will always remember your vote of confidence when so many of you chose to remain at Stevenson instead of transferring to another high school and, most of all, we will remember you as a group of individuals who were intensely interested in improving your school, your neighborhood, and your country.

We hope that these three years at Stevenson have been profitable and pleasurable ones for you, and that they have been years of maturing and growth.

To your families and yourself, the best of luck and good fortune. You have set a mark for all future graduating classes to aim for; your influence will remain for a long time to come.

Sincerely,

Leonard F Littwin
